Mark Burns—Black and White Photography

Mark Burns is a professional photographer who works in black and white landscape photography.

In 2015, Mark completed a five year project, photographing all 59 national parks. He has since photographed the 2 new national parks, bringing the total to 61. His photographs traveled to six museums during the National Park Service centennial year of 2016. (In 2016, HCC visited his exhibit at Bush Presidential Library in College Station.)

A master of the black and white image, Mark is skilled in large format photography, traditional silver gelatin and platinum print-making, yet is equally comfortable working in today's digital world.
